this

this is a special keyword in Java.

What it really refers to is the instance that was created when the object was instantiated.

So, this is a special reference name for the object or instance, which it can use to describe itself.

And we can use this to access fields on the class.